THREE GOULD GRADUATES RECEIVE PRESIDENT'S AWARD AT BATES COLLEGE

In the 1968-70 Bates College Bulletin an announcement is made of the President's Award which is "made annually to the preparatory school whose three highest ranking students in its delegation at Bates have the best combined scholastic average for the academic year. To be eligible a school must be represented by three or more students in good standing."

From 1948 on, schools in the State of Maine have won the award only three times: 1949 and 1968—Edward Little High School, Auburn, and in 1963, Gould Academy.

In a letter of congratulations from President Reynolds to Richard Dolven, Headmaster, the following information was given: "This year, Gould Academy, represented by Elizabeth Thompson '69; Larry Billings, '69; and Stanley McKnight, '70, took first place with a combined quality point ratio of 3.415." (4.0 would equal all A's). Elizabeth Thompson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Thompson, Mohawk, New York; Larry Billings is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Billings, Bryant Pond, and Stanley McKnight, son of Mr. and Mrs. George S. McKnight, Jr., Rumford.

ANDROSCOGGIN ENFORCEMENT CONFERENCE AT GORHAM, N. H., OCT. 21

Gorham, N. H., will be the setting Tuesday, Oct. 21, for the reconvening of the Federal-State Enforcement conference on pollution abatement along the Androscoggin River and its tributaries, Maine and New Hampshire are the states involved.

Gorham and nearby Berlin have been identified by Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel as the two major New Hampshire sources for degrading the Androscoggin. Plants of the Brown Pulp and Paper Company are located in those communities.

The Conference, which will be open to the public, will be held at the Town and Country Motor Inn, Gorham, with starting time scheduled for 9:30 a. m.

While there will be opportunity to discuss the entire pollution situation of the Androscoggin, primary attention is expected to be focused on pollution abatement time schedules for communities and industries along the river. New Hampshire has set a deadline of October 1975 for Berlin and one of April 1976 for Gorham to comply with the State's water quality standards.

In contrast, Maine has established a deadline of Oct. 1, 1973, for the 12 Maine industries and nine municipalities along the river to meet that State's standards.

The principal reason for reconvening the Enforcement Conference is to attempt to set earlier deadlines along the New Hampshire stretch of the river.

The first session of the Conference was held in Portland in September 1962 and February 1963. Parties to the Conference are the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration, the States of Maine and New Hampshire and the New England Interstate Water Pollution Control Commission.

Murray Stein, the FWPCA's Assistant Commissioner for Enforcement, will preside at the second session.

GREENWOOD CITY

Mrs. Collis Morgan, Corres.
Richard Le Gallienne's poem "I Meant to Do My Work Today" expresses exactly the way I felt on these lovely days this last week.

"So what could I do but laugh and go."
I have enjoyed so many hikes and scenes. There have been forests with sunlight, streams gurgling with delight and azure of lakes reflecting the skies and flaming trees on each bright day.

My first trip was to my own hillside. There is always something here that warms the heart with its loveliness. Here I may look out from my magic throne and wonder and dream in a world of my own.

Secondly, friends and I went to Grafton Notch and climbed to Table Rock.

Views from there are not describable for mountains are hard to explain. We use words such as magnificent, solitary, free, and beautiful, but these phrases just do not express it at all. Maybe we should say a mountain is a mountain. They are incomparable except to other mountains. But I loved the grandeur here. There they stood ageless and vast scanning the lovely earth and blue-gray sky. They overlook a forested panorama of cliffs and partially barren peaks so wide, and a valley so brilliant and gay, at this time of year one can hardly believe the incredible beauty. Their rugged profiles etched their lines upon the sky and stood with watchful eye seeing the sun before the valley folk.

Yellow sunshines buttered the leaf covered trail which led up and out of sight high to the top most cliff. The wind greeted us with glad excitement singing its own song.

Slender tree tops flapped and swished bending and swirling backward and forward. We clung to our surroundings like a bobolink on a weed.

The view from here must be extremely beautiful at any time, but this day it was superb. We looked over the hills and valley as over fields of waving grain and watched

There was a good attendance at Sunday school Sunday morning.

Voted to hold the Christmas Sale on Dec. 3, at the Church. The November meeting will be held at Mrs. Clara Rolfe's on Nov. 12.

They are now working in Groveton, N. H. Michael Gordon has employment with the crew in Groveton.

Tommy Kimball's two year old son of Chuluota, Fla., was run over recently by a car, receiving cuts and leg injury, no broken bones.

Donald Morrill of Yorktown Heights, N. Y., was in town on the week end, returning home on Monday. He was in Vermont on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Davis were in Portland Sunday and called on his brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Davis.

Sunday visitors at Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Lovejoy's were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Downing and Mrs. Raymond Dean of West Paris. Callers the ripples across the expanse from mountain to mountain, as the shining foliage was stirred. These waves of light sometimes broke up suddenly, and after chasing one another would disappear on some mountain side like sea waves on the shore.

The shadows from time to time greatly enhanced the autumn splendor. All was ablaze with colors; greens, reds, golden hue, orange, brown, and yellows, too.

I presume there are those who feel mountains are oppressive or shut them in but not I. Sometimes they seem dreamy, brooding, and lonely, while again so close and massive I can reach out and touch them. But this day they seemed gay and flaunting in their dresses of flame and I love them.

My third jaunt was to Jockey Cap in Fryeburg, an easy climb and again an interesting setting. Here there were more evergreens. In lovely sisterhood they stood, pine, spruce, hemlock, and balsam fir. Their needles shone in the sun. They tapered perfectly; clean, dry, and resinous. Their fragrance was a part of the crystal air.

The river wound in and out among them and Lovell Pond sparkled and changed again and again in the distance.

My last was my own Patch Mountain where red and gold leaves mingled in the road rustling as we walked while above, the trees clasped their hands.

Wherever I went there were maple bonfires in the glens and earth's loveliest autumn fires aglow. But always with gladness I returned to "see the sunlight fading."

Beyond the mountain high, And feel my heart responding, To peace I can't deny."

(Gertrude Rudberg)

Only four more Sundays before the Sunday school will close for the winter. Not very good attendance this year. Partly because of the teacher's sickness and partly because the children forgot the dates. Hope they remember the last meeting.

who passed away October 20, 1929

There is a road of remembrance Where thought and wishes meet I take the road of love today To the ones I cannot greet Only a cluster of memories Sprayed with a million tears Wishing God had spared you Just a few more years.

You were so young and full of life As I know it to be on earth But death is not a thing to fear It is the Lord's great birth. Many more of our loved ones Have joined you since you went away.

And even though I miss you here, You are just a prayer today. The flowers I put upon your grave May wither and decay But the love for her who sleeps beneath Will never fade away.

There is a path I know not where I dream and think of her out there I am not too far behind. So keep the path that I can find. Should you go first and I remain One thing I'll have you do Walk slowly down that long long path.

For soon I'll follow you I want to know each step you take So I may take the same For some day down that lonely road You'll hear me call your name.

This brings us to your town manager's, fire chief's and police officer's concern for a rescue squad to respond and deliver emergency victims to an effective treatment area. This likewise is a concern of the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons Committee on Injuries. It was also a concern of the Civilian Fire Brigades during the Battle of London and likewise for those in charge of evacuation of Vietnam casualties. In London and Vietnam it was shown that trained non-medical personnel could reliably respond to emergency situations and deliver very appropriate action. In Dixfield, Maine it was shown that a girl scout, having received a resuscitation lecture from a local fireman and ambulance driver could resuscitate an unconscious, drowned girl.

Dr. Edward Morse of Rockland, Maine has made good progress in developing a radio network for doctors in the emergency area of the hospital, the firemen, police and rescue personnel to serve his region of bays, peninsulas and islands of the Maine coast. It is not unreasonable that training of rescue personnel be affiliated with the disaster plan required of your regional hospitals for accreditation.

The American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons each year in multiple cities sponsors a course for the "Emergency Care and Transportation for the Sick and Injured" for non medical care personnel. It lasts three days and is an energetic, dramatic effort to high grade the approach of the ambulance driver, the fireman, policeman, scout leader and rescue worker. For information write Dr. William R. MacAusland, Jr., 412 Beacon Street, Boston, or to me.

POINT IN PASSING
The symbol of justice has a blindfolded lady holding a set of scales. It is not known whether her mood of the moment caused her to have a down or a smiling face, or possibly even the enigmatic look of the Mona Lisa.

Of course, the theory is that justice should be dispensed without regard to the accused's station in society.

A story was attributed to Abraham Lincoln of the man who was convicted of murdering his mother and father, and then pleading for mercy on the grounds that he was an orphan. According to Daniel Defoe, "Justice is always violent to the party offending, for every man is innocent in his own eyes," even though he knows better.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

It is in reference to your town manager's recent comments about efforts to make available vehicles, material, and non medical emergency care personnel that I write—both to encourage your rural readers and to make known a source of training.

The coming cessation of ambulance service in the Bethel region I know seems and is one more frustrating step in the apparent withdrawal of medical service compared to the local family physician care of pre-World War II days. Having now spent three years closely attached to a physician training situation it is quite apparent to me that the hoped for "primary physician" is not going to be produced in anywhere near adequate numbers to staff our rural areas and minister personal maintenance care. This is especially true in the eastern United States, where intensified rural distress signals from the urban ghettos have shifted the emphasis away from the rural needs for physicians. This dearth of primary physicians may not be constant for one does sense in the Harvard and Tufts medical students a new urgency for community responsibility. Also, the unmanageable burden of the draft may soon be lifted and some research grant cut backs are going to result in more young physicians getting on with the practice of medicine earlier in their lives than now happens.

Of the three types of care: preventive medicine, maintenance medicine, and emergency medicine, the first is available to every American and its results are truly awesome. One has to see here at the Children's Hospital the polio victims from Ecuador, Colombia and Puerto Rico to remember. Measles will soon be gone as will mumps; diphtheria is nearly unheard of; tuberculosis is getting rare and lung cancer can be conquered. Your maintenance care is going to depend on being competitive with suburban living, with the ghetto related teaching hospital salaries and position and with other rural and semi-rural communities. The available physician usually will be looking for suitable education for his children, respect for his profession, viable community institutions and a hospital with sufficient sophistication of staff and equipment that he can utilize his technical skills. Given a chance to maintain his family's well being and his own health a physician will never abandon the very personal management of his patients, for that method will always be more effective, productive, satisfying and less costly than clinic or "computer medicine."

and aided by the same driver save the life. On the other side of the coin, the Worcester tornado and the Coconut Grove Fire were examples of dreadful unpreparedness of both civil and medical personnel.

The physician's role in the majority of emergencies has become closely attached to his use of sophisticated tools available at the hospital: blood transfusions, intravenous electrolytes, a sterile surgical area, electronics apparatus for cardiac crises, etc.

Much pain and panic in rural emergency situations and anxiety about the thinness of physical deployment could be dispelled by knowing that you have regional hospitals with on call physicians, modern equipment and a home guard of neighbors, civil officers and volunteers well trained in emergency care and transportation of the sick and injured. Thus as an institution weakens and a convenience lessens you resort to those traditional New England strengths of self reliance and education to make the new order work.

And never again will they say "HEY DAD, HOW COME THE OTHER KIDS ALWAYS HAVE ALL THE FUN?"

There's a lot to be said for the 1970 MOTO-SKI. Not for the thrill that beats all thrills, consider this: you drive into your yard. It's winter cold and a little afterdark. The family doesn't know you're bringing home a sparkling new 1970 MOTO-SKI (nothing wrong with making that kind of decision on your own). You walk into the house (even once or twice) and say to the kids, "Hey kids! How about bringing in those bundles from the back of the car?"

That's the kind of thrill that young folks remember best about growing up. But it's just the beginning. When you buy one of these 1970 family lovin' MOTO-SKIS, you'll make them like they're "the other kid". The one that always has all the fun!

BEAN - LARSON

On Saturday, September 20, at the Norway Congregational Church, Miss Elizabeth Bean, daughter of Mrs. Edward Frechette of South Paris, and the late Stanley Bean of Hanover, became the bride of Charles Larson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Larson of Norway. Rev. J. Nesbitt Lello heard their vows in a double ring service.

The bride was attired in an Empire style afternoon dress of crepe, with purple skirt and white pleated bodice, long nylon sleeves tied at wrist with purple velvet. Her petal-veiled headpiece of purple held a short veil of lilac; her Colonial bouquet was purple asters and pink and white carnations.

Their attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lowe of Oxford, cousins of the bride. Mrs. Lowe wore a purple crepe afternoon dress and carried a Colonial bouquet similar to the bride's.
